Why should WCVA's members vote for me to be a Trustee?

I am a school governor, a board member of the RE Council of England and Wales, and I manage pastoral and educational volunteers across Wales. I am passionate about good governance, equality, and the need to respect and listen to all voices. Volunteering allows communities to thrive, lets people from different backgrounds work together for a common goal and a sense of purpose. Being able to help people we don't know is at the heart of our humanity. I have significant experience in volunteering in varied roles. I firmly believe good governance and advocacy are vital to enable a strong volunteer community, which provides so much support for our communities and public services in Wales. I am experienced in board membership and working with a range of stakeholders, and will continue my own volunteering to be able to bring that knowledge and expertise to a trustee role.
